"Welcome recruits, before you are accepted into the Zootropolis Police Department you must pass the Zootropolis' Police Academy training task.

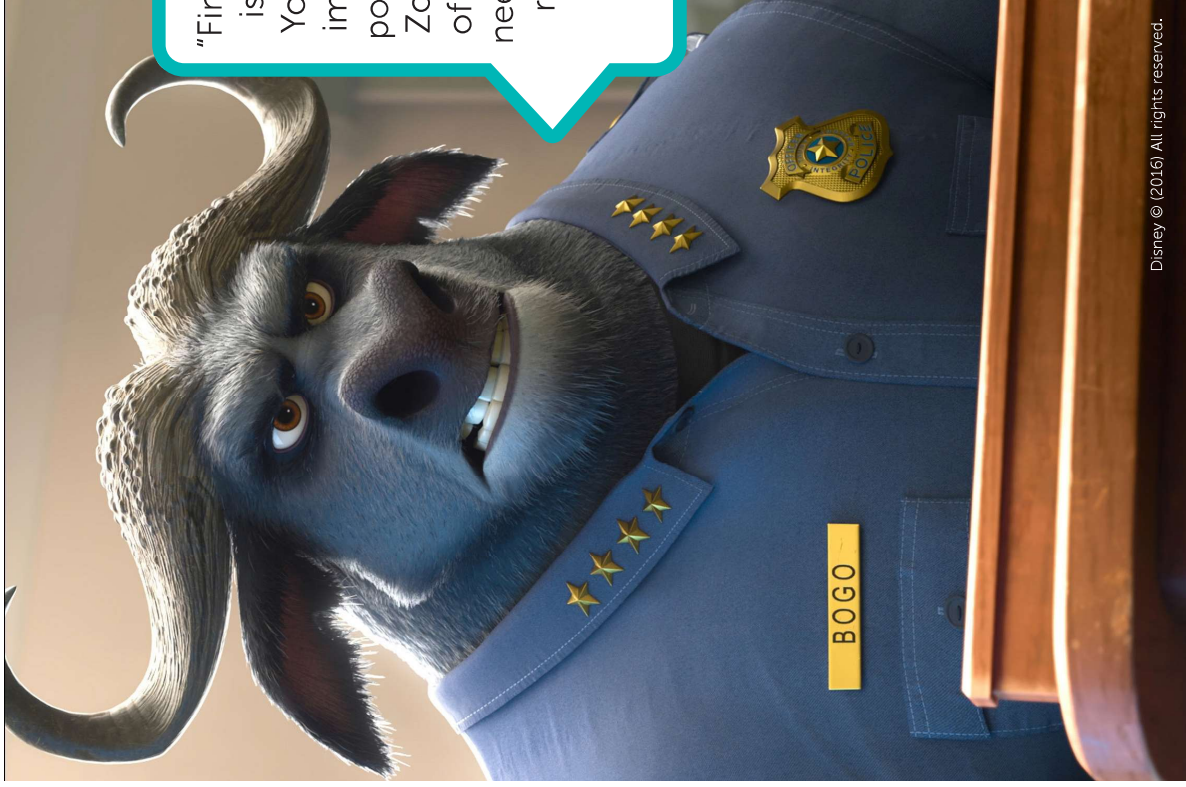

Watch the clip 'Arriving' very carefully and use your powers of observation to try and identify as many animals as possible."

Mayor L. Lionheart

Powers of Observation: Animal Identification

Total number of animals observed =

"Finding the missing mammals is our number one priority. Your task in helping with this important case is to create a poster letting the residents of Zootropolis know about one of the missing animals. You'll need to do some of your own research to find out some facts on the animal. Good luck officers!"

Make sure your poster has a bold and catchy title, a photo of the missing animal and their name!

It is also important to include the following information about the animal:

- Species name
- Height and weight
- Any family
- Appearance and distinguishing features
- Job
- Diet
- Habitat

You can also add in other information about the animal that you think may help the people of Zootropolis to find it.

Remember to also let people know who to contact if they have any information or spot the animal.
